Re: Text slips of paper found inside case of Disposable Isolation Gowns

To whom it may concern,

During the pandemic, to safeguard the global reputation and address concerns related to counterfeit products, the Chinese government has made it mandatory for all Personal Protective Equipment (PPE) items to be certified as either medical or non-medical use in accordance with China domestic standards and regulations, and required to include an expiration date and shelf-life in the products. Since our products were not intended to be used in China, we were obligated to label them as non-medical.

Our Disposable Isolation Gowns were not produced for sale in China. The text has no bearing on sales or shelf-life in the USA. These disposable isolation gowns are regulated by FDA, and they were produced in compliance with FDA regulation.

The text on these slips of paper may appear misleading but have no reference on sales, distribution, use or regulations in the US. Discarding this text will have no effect on the labeling requirements in the US, and can be removed at your discretion.
